former coaches and yearly results

Mary Kennerty King
1976-82

Mary Kennerty King served as the first head coach of the Clemson women's basketball and women's tennis teams after Athletic Director Bill McLellan announced that the university would begin the programs in the 1975-76 school year.

King coached the basketball team for just one season with the Lady Tigers compiling a 14-11 record that year. She then guided the women's tennis program to a remarkable 133-47 record for a .739 winning percentage over her seven-year tenure. The Tigers were ranked in the top 20 in the final poll four times under King, with the #9 final ranking for the 1981 season.

Clemson claimed its first ACC title under King in 1982 and went on to participate in the inaugural NCAA Tournament. King coached Jane Forman, who had also been named the ACC Tournament Most Valuable Performer, to All-America honors for the 1982 season, the fourth under her tutelage.

Susan Hill became the Tigers' and King's first All-American in 1978 as she was also selected as the ACC Player-of-the-Year that year. King guided Hill to four ACC Player-of-the-Year accolades as well as four ACC flight one singles titles and three All-America honors.

King earned a Bachelor's of Arts in secondary education from Clemson in 1973. She spent the next year teaching history and coaching girls' basketball at Russell High School in Atlanta, GA before returning to Clemson as a graduate student and, later, remaining as a head coach.

Andy Johnston
1983-97

Andy Johnston took over the reins to the Clemson women's tennis program for the 1983 season and served 15 years as the Tigers head coach.

Johnston is the winningest women's tennis coach in Clemson history on a total wins basis (254-160), guiding his squads to five consecutive ACC titles (1983-87), 12 top-25 finishes and six NCAA Tournaments.

In his first season with the Tigers, he directed Clemson to a school-record 30 wins, an ACC title and a number-seven national ranking. The Tigers swept all nine flights of the ACC Tournament that year, a first in ACC tennis history, men or women. Johnston also coached Gigi Fernandez to the finals of the NCAA singles tournament, still the only Tiger player who can make that claim.

In his 15 seasons, Johnston was named ACC Coach-of-the-Year four times, tied for fourth in Clemson sports history, and was selected as the Southeast Region Coach-of-the-Year twice. Seven players that he coached were named to the ACC's 50th Anniversary team in 2003, and the Tigers earned 51 All-ACC selections and 13 All-America honors under Johnston.

He had a 254-160 record while at Clemson with a career mark of 263-167 that includes one season spent as the head coach of the Furman Paladin program.

Johnston's association with Clemson dates back to the 1975 season when he joined the men's program as a varsity player under Coach Chuck Kriese. He received his degree in administrative management in 1979. During the 1980 season, Johnston served as an assistant men's coach with Kriese before taking over head duties at Furman in 1981.

He has remained involved with Clemson athletics, serving as an Assistant Athletic Director for football management under Tommy West, Tommy Bowden, and Dabo Swinney for the past 14 years.
